

THE edge Business Spotlight

CONNECTION

Georgia Elite Health

Georgia Elite Health is a minority, woman-owned chiropractic and holistic wellness clinic. Alicia Matthews and her husband, the doctors of Georgia Elite Health, work together to help people get well and stay well. After working for other clinics, they decided to create an atmosphere for patients that would truly find answers and solutions to their health concerns. Instead of just treating symptoms in their office, Alicia and her husband address the underlying cause of their patients' problems. Mrs. Matthews states, "Patient care is so important to us and we want to make sure that every patient who walks through our doors feels loved, educated, and served by our doctors and staff. Because our practice is patient centered, our pledge to the community consists of 7 core values:

- We will take time to listen to your needs.
- We will treat you like a person and not a number.
- We will provide honest health recommendations.
- We are upfront about finances and there will be no hidden costs or surprises.
- There will be no long waits in our doctor's office. Your time is valuable!
- We will honor you and your family by giving exceptional service.
- We will continue to stay educated so you can receive the latest & most current solutions to your health care needs.

Meet the Owner: Alicia Matthews

Dr. Alicia Matthews met her husband, fell in love, and married while in chiropractic school. She and her husband started Georgia Elite Health with less than $2,500. Since they had so little money to start with, they decided to cut costs by renting space in another doctor's office. This helped to significantly reduce their overhead since they did not have to worry about lights, gas, water, property taxes, etc. All they needed to do was cover rent and the expenses of their own practice. This helped them save the funds to purchase their own building.

Dr. Matthews provides free health screenings. She also gives back 10% of patient fees to the non-profit chosen by the patient. Local OBGYNs and midwives in the community refer patients to Georgia Elite Health. And she and her husband are very active in the community.

Dr. Matthews found her way to The Edge Connection through Tamu Stewart, the owner of Naunnie's Day-care. Ms. Stewart, an Edge client herself, shared her experience when she learned that Dr. Matthews was interested in taking a leap of faith to start her own business.

Alicia's Vision for Georgia Elite Health is:

To work as team with other chiropractors, medical doctors, physical therapists, massage therapists, nutritionist, and life coaches to provide the best health results for patients. In the future, we would like to create a non-profit health clinic that follows our chiropractic & holistic wellness approach. This clinic will provide the much needed care for those that cannot afford it.
